

Solitude

Isaac Watts, 1719
Psalm 47, stanza 6

88. 88. (L. M.) Transcribed from The Psalm-Singer's Amusement, 1804 E minor

Lemuel Babcock, ca. 1780

Tr. My flesh shall slum - ber in the ground Till the last trumpet's joy - ful sound;

C. My flesh shall slum - ber in the ground Till the last trumpet's joy - ful³ sound;

T. My flesh shall slum - ber in the ground Till the last trumpet's joy - ful sound;

B. My flesh shall slum - ber in the ground Till the last trumpet's joy - ful sound;

Tr. Then burst the chains with sweet sur - prise, And in my Savior's im - age rise.

C. Then burst the chains with sweet sur - prise, And in my Savior's im - age rise.

T. Then burst the chains with sweet sur - prise, And in my Savior's im - age rise.

B. Then burst the chains with sweet sur - prise, And in my Savior's im - age rise.

This tune first appeared in The Waterhouse Manuscript, for three voices Treble-Tenor-Bass, ascribed to "L. B.". It was first published in Stone and Wood's The Columbian Harmony for four voices, then in the 1804 compilation, The Psalm-Singer's Assistant, compiled by Solomon Howe.
