Text: William Whittingham, on Ps. 37

PSALM XXXVII. Verse 37.

Mark and be - hold the up - right man, How God doth him in - crease;
As for trans - gres - sors, woe to them! Des - troy'd they all shall be;
But the sal - va - tion of the just Doth come from God a - bove, God ev - er - more de - li - vers them From vile men and un - just;

Mark and be - hold the up - right man, How God doth him in - crease;
As for trans - gres - sors, woe to them! Des - troy'd they all shall be;

rest and peace, great joy with rest and peace.
 te - ri - ty, and rich pos - te - ri - ty.
 grace and love, of his mere grace and love.
 put their trust, in him do put their trust.

rest and peace, great joy with rest and peace.
 -te - ri - ty, and rich pos - te - ri - ty.
 grace and love, of his mere grace and love.
 put their trust, in him do put their trust.

rest and peace, great joy rich with rest and peace.
 te - ri - ty, and rich his mere grace and love.
 grace and love, of his mere grace and love.
 put their trust, in him do put their trust.

rest and peace, great joy rich with rest and peace.
 te - ri - ty, and rich his mere grace and love.
 grace and love, of his mere grace and love.
 put their trust, in him do put their trust.

Notes:

The time signature in the source is retorted time.

The alto part is printed in the source in the treble clef, an octave above sounding pitch.

Only verse 37 of the text is underlaid in the source: the three subsequent verses have been added editorially.
