

Eaton Faning (1850-1927)

Joseph Eaton Faning (1850-1927) was born in Helston, Cornwall, the son of a music teacher. He was taught piano and violin by his parents and, at the age of five, made his first public appearance playing a violin solo. He was a chorister in a local church and studied organ and the violin with local teachers. At twelve, he became organist of All Saints' Church, Holbrook. He then studied under Lindley Nunn, organist of St. Mary-le-Tower, Ipswich, who appointed Faning his deputy. Faning played at the daily evening service for five years, and was deputy trainer of the choir. He entered the Royal Academy of Music and studied composition under Sterndale Bennett and Arthur Sullivan. He received many awards including the Lucas silver medal for composition for his setting of the Magnificat. Sir John Stainer selected it for performance at the Festival of the Sons of the Clergy in 1878. Faning was organist of St. Thomas's Church, Paddington and St. John's Church, Lewisham. He conducted two amateur musical societies and "Mr. Eaton Faning's Select Choir," a professional group that sang at the London Ballad Concerts. He joined the staff of the Royal Academy of Music in 1874 and later taught at the Guildhall School of Music, the Royal College of Music and Harrow School. His compositions range from operettas to church music, including a Mass. He also composed orchestral music including a symphony, and was best known for his songs and part-songs.

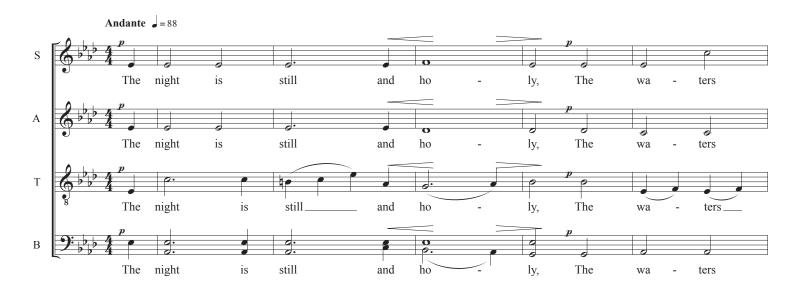

The night is still and holy,
The waters softly flow;
Across the dark horizon
The magic moon swims low;
And it seems to the eyes that are gazing
Wistfully over the sea
Like a silver path that is leading
To where the heart would be.

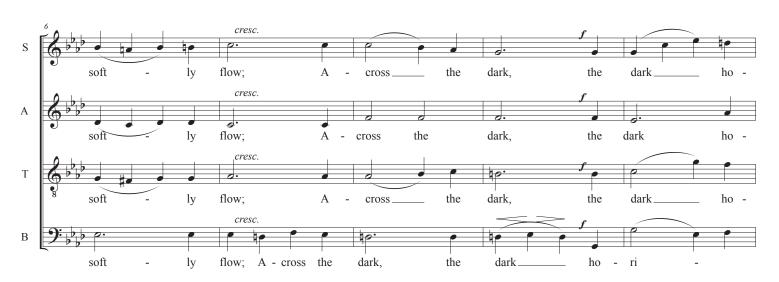

And ever a song is rising
Out of the tranced waves;
Is it the mermaids singing
Down in their crystal caves,
A strange and beautiful music,
Tender and sweet, and low,
A song that the heart hears only
In the voice of the long-ago?

Shine on, O magic moonlight,
Across the water's flow,
And sing, ye sweet mer-maidens,
Your song of long-ago.
And the heart shall forget its sorrow,
Sad eyes no longer weep;
As the past returns, and our dreams come true,
In the beautiful land of sleep.

Frederic Edward Weatherly (1848-1929)

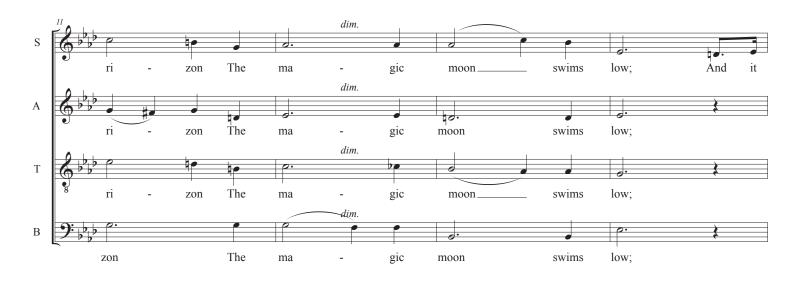

Eaton Faning

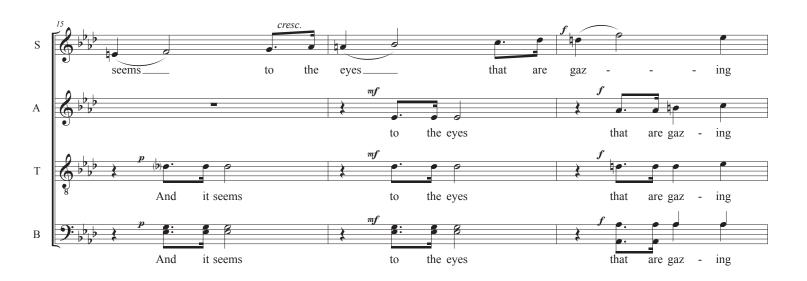

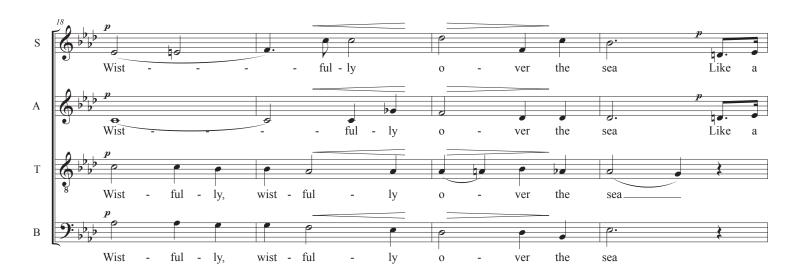

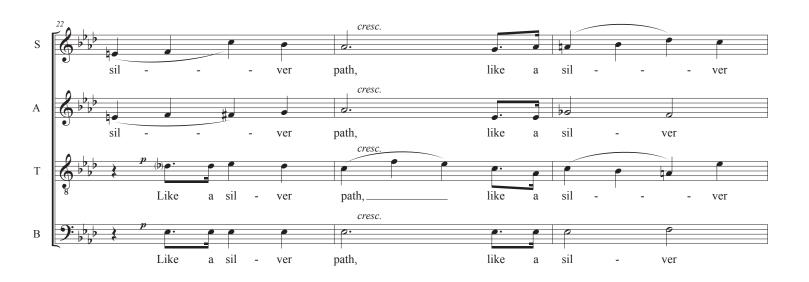

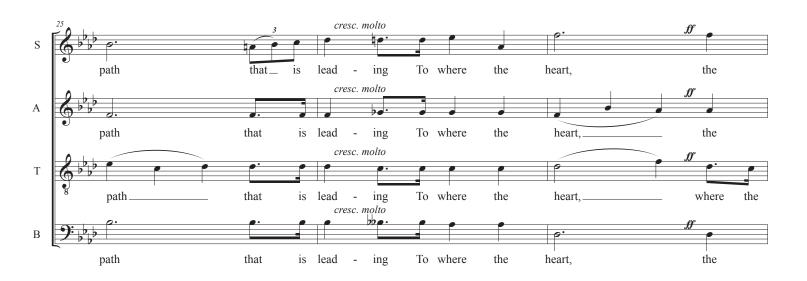

Edition and "engraving" @ 2014 SHORCHORTM. May be freely distributed, duplicated, performed and recorded under the TERMS OF USE described elsewhere in this publication. This edition is not a source for a secondary edition.

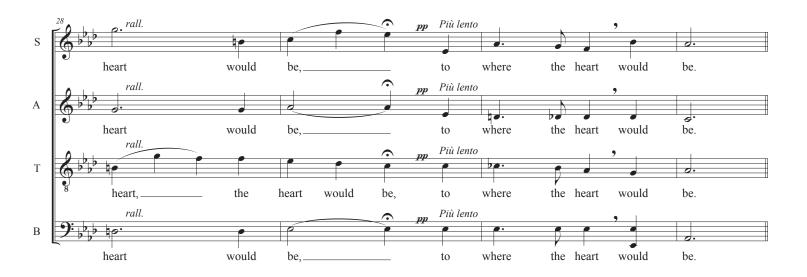

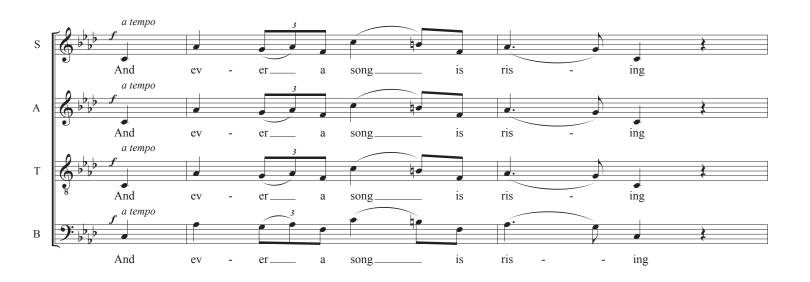

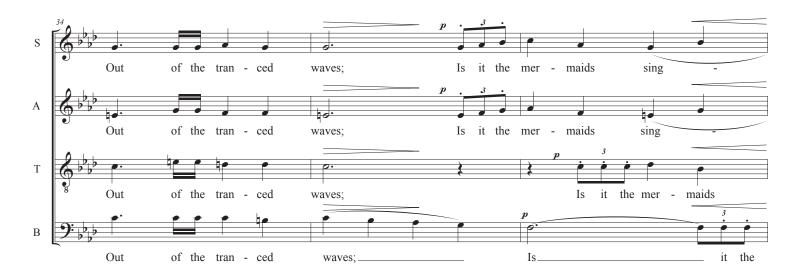

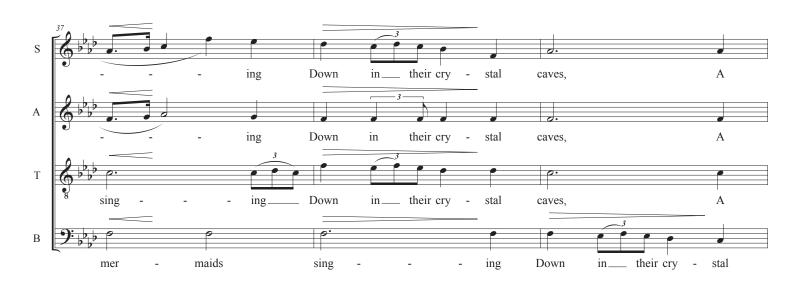

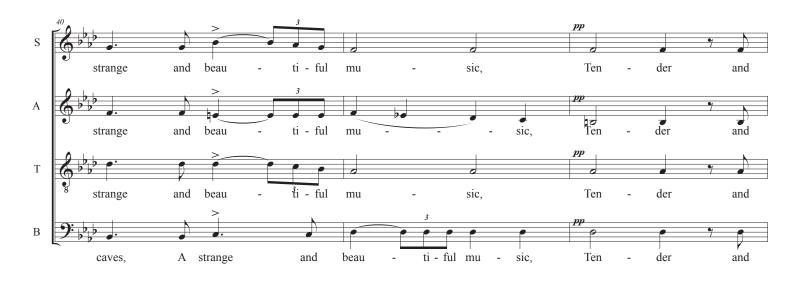

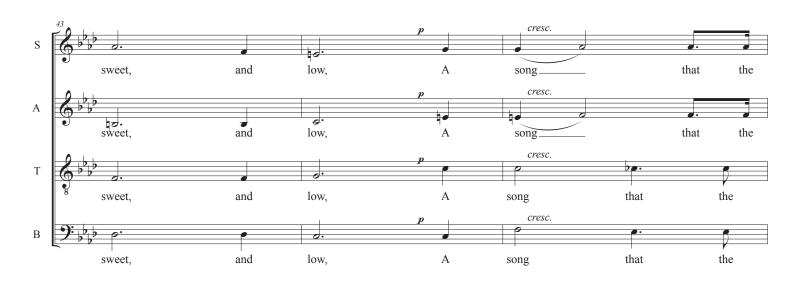

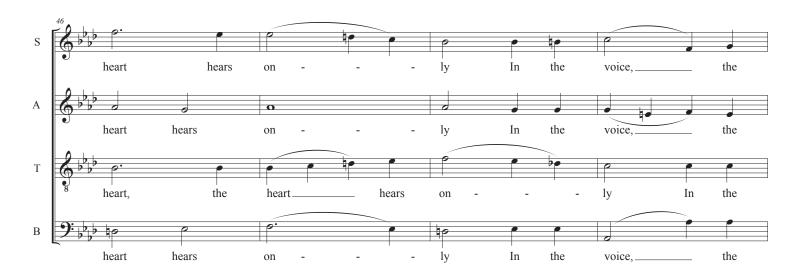

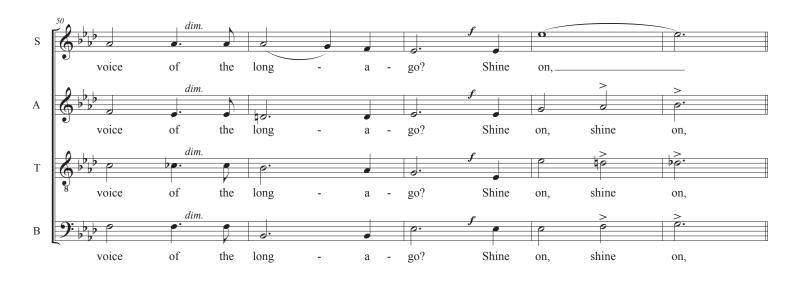

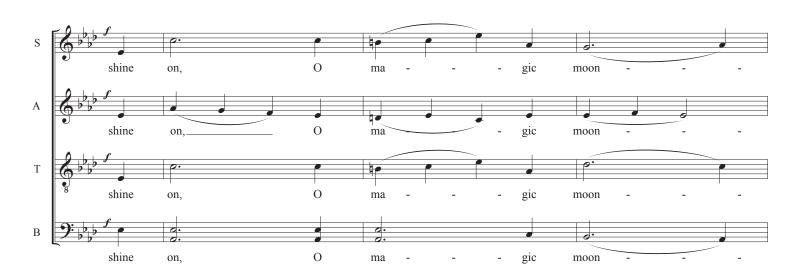

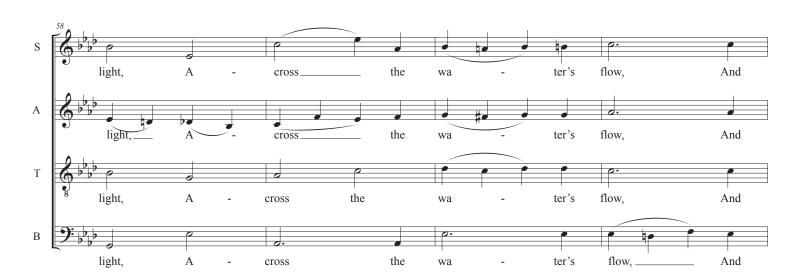

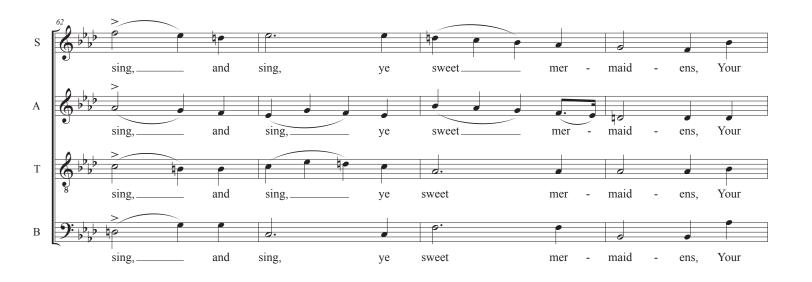

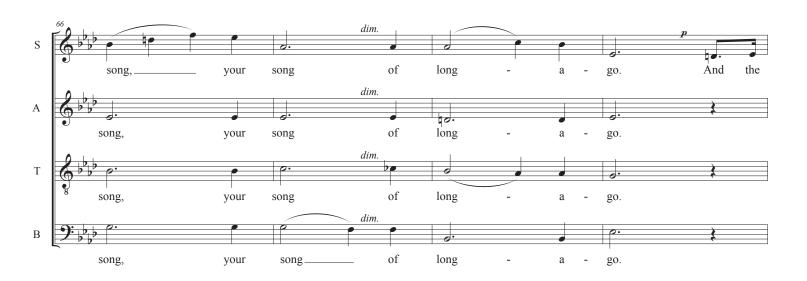

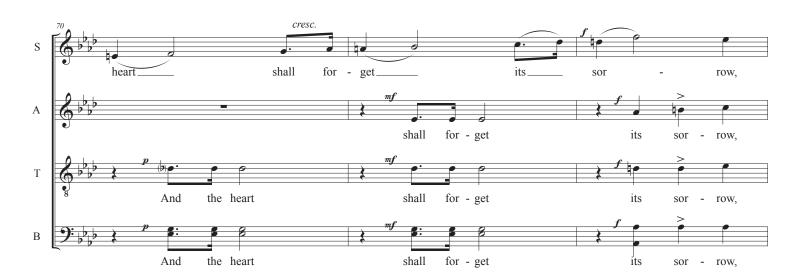

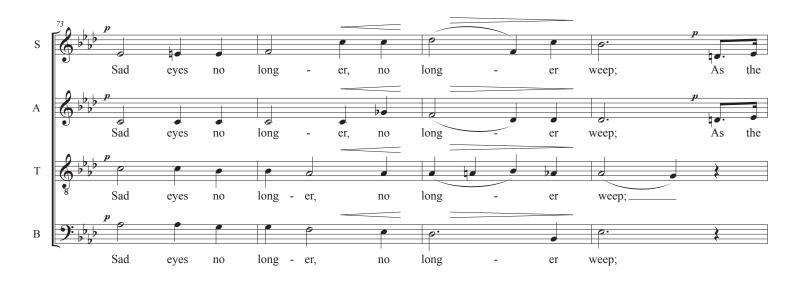

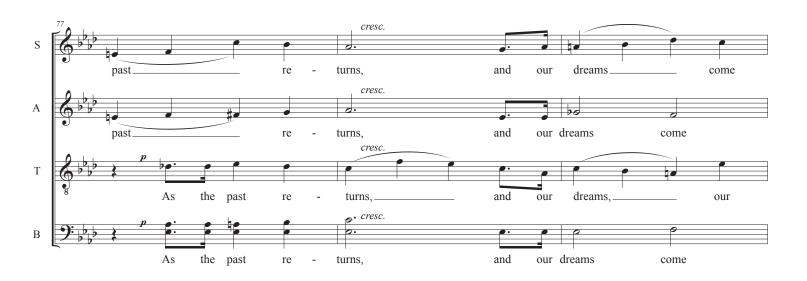

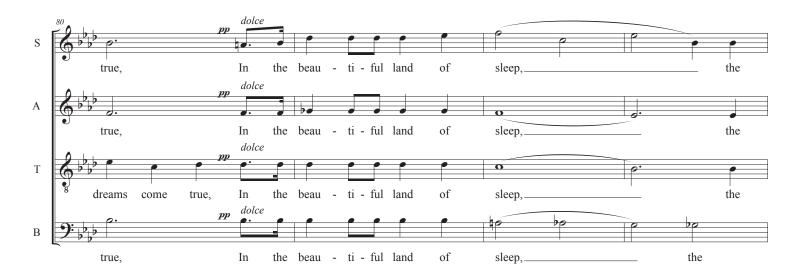

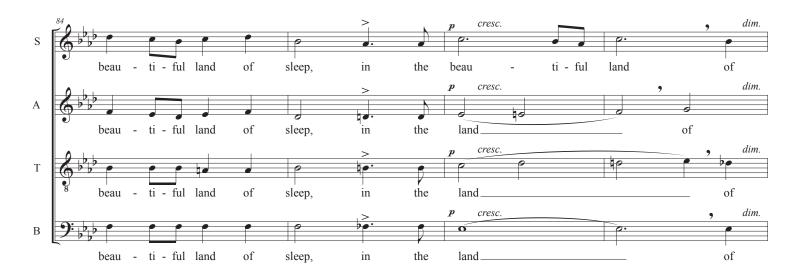

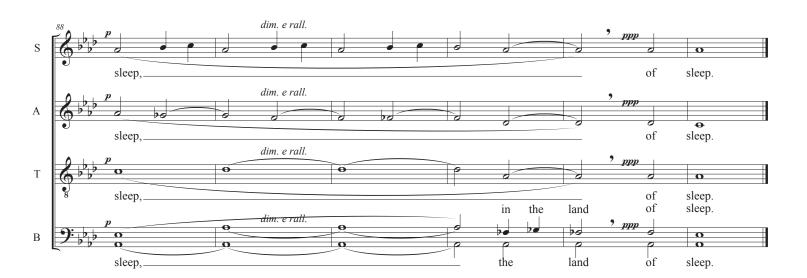

Novello, Ewer and Company (1886)

TERMS OF USE

These editions are available as a service to the choral community, offering inexpensive access to public domain literature. Choir resources can purchase other literature still under copyright, especially to support those creating and publishing new compositions and arrangements. These editions have been created using public domain sources under U. S. copyright law. Out of respect to the research, time and effort invested:

please print and issue an edition in its entirety, retaining notices, attributions, and logos. please do not consider this edition a source for creating another edition.

If performed, sending a copy of the concert program would be a valuable affirmation. If recorded, notification and attribution would be appropriate professional courtesies and a copy of the recording would be greatly appreciated!

For a full description of these requests and more scores, visit: www.shorchor.net

